On the pulse of time

We felt the soul. We stood in wildness to understand the power of nature. We rode the horse to follow the birds that never sleep. We watched the rain to fall and smack the steppe to shape the mountains. We watched the time to bead the days and nights and wear the necklace.

We walked the steppe and felt the sensitive mind. We watched the morning to be the youngest dancer. We walked the wind and sensed the breath of steppes. We watched the Earth to be the silence of the blue night. We made the lights to calm the sensitive darkness. They light the soul.

We sought the soul. We sought to see the eyes of Mother Nature. And when we saw it, we knelt on the knee, fingertips touching the ground and lips whispering the praying of devotion. Those things we never saw embraced the overwhelming majesty. She's got the eyes of innocence, the voice of bird, the chest of mountain, the color of light, the wings of sky and the heart of mother. We touched the soul.
